

VIDEO FOUR: Rewarding Experiences

Victoria Kassab: I enjoy doing activities with the children. It's very fulfilling to me. Just seeing their faces and how they act, when you do something that they really enjoy, it's really rewarding. It's just, the little things that they're so fascinated by, and I just love being able to help them with their development, it's just very rewarding.

I've had so many experiences working up at LifeLink, which is for 18 to 21-year-olds with disabilities. It's kind of helping them ready to get into the real world. It's up in the HUB, and I was able to be a mentor for a young man that has Down Syndrome. It was extremely rewarding. It was for a class and, so, I never thought class would be so much fun.

Andrea Dolak: I am an outgoing person. I like to work with other people a lot. I love working with kids. I want to help them grow and develop and I want to provide an atmosphere where they can grow and develop and interact with other children their age. And I want to help facilitate their learning so that they can become productive members of society.

I have special moments every day. Every day that I connect with a child and I teach them something new and I understand that they actually understand what's going on and they have learned something new. It is so gratifying to see children learning new things and I just enjoy that every single day.

From: www.ed.psu.edu/educ/cecprs/rehabilitation-services